STRATEGIC RADIOLOGY NAMES KLEINSCHMIDT AS CEO

St. Paul, MN (July 22, 2010)

Strategic Radiology (SR) announced today that it has named Mark J. Kleinschmidt as CEO. Kleinschmidt has worked in the radiology field for twenty two years and most recently served as CEO of St. Paul Radiology and Senior Vice President of Business Services for NightHawk Radiology.

“We are pleased to have Mark join the leadership team of Strategic Radiology,” said Van Moore, MD, Chairman of SR and President of Charlotte Radiology. “His experience with a large group like St. Paul Radiology, and his extensive radiology background will serve SR well.”

“Radiology is in the midst of rapid transformation and the digitization of radiology has led this change” said Kleinschmidt. “I am excited to be working with the leaders of large private radiology practices who are committed to providing high quality radiology services to improve patient care.”

Strategic Radiology is a consortium comprised of fifteen of the largest private radiology groups in the country who share a common vision and clinical goals. These goals include delivering high quality radiology services in a cost-effective manner through sharing of best practices. In addition, SR intends to further expand access to radiology subspecialization within member groups and establish measurable standards for clinical quality. More information about Strategic Radiology can be found on the organization’s web site, www.strategicradiology.org.
