Referring Physician Guide: When to Refer to Interventional Radiology vs. When to Refer for Vein Treatment

Vascular and Interventional Specialists at Charlotte Radiology are a subspecialized group of physicians that are trained to diagnose and treat disease under image guidance with minimally invasive techniques.

Our Interventional Radiology Practice

We offer comprehensive vascular care through interventional radiology. Many conditions that once required traditional surgery can now be treated less invasively. Our interventional radiologists use image-guidance to diagnose and treat disease, minimizing trauma to the body and reducing infection rates and recovery time. The experts of Vascular and Interventional Specialists at Charlotte Radiology perform a list of minimally invasive procedures, offering patients a safe alternative to surgery.

Our Vein Treatment Practice

Vascular and Interventional Specialists also treat varicose and spider veins at two outpatient vein centers. Our interventional radiologists are subspecialized in vein and vascular diagnoses and treatments, which means they have the training and expertise necessary to treat your vein disease at its source. The minimally-invasive treatments we offer can provide significant and lasting relief to patients.

When to refer to Interventional Radiology Clinic:

Patients with positive screening test (ABI <0.9) and lower extremity symptoms

Patients with claudication

Patients with lower extremity rest pain

Patients with non-healing, ischemic wounds, or risk of impaired wound healing post-op

Patients with symptomatic acute or chronic DVT

When to refer to Vein Treatment Center:

Patients with symptoms of venous insufficiency:

- Lower extremity edema
- Varicose veins
- Superficial thrombophlebitis
- Venous stasis ulcers
